

National Republican.

M. J. SEPPA LIVCHAK, a Russian editor of no small repute among his countrymen, in a letter to the Lemberg Star, maintains that he has solved the problem of naval warfare at sea. The method proposed by him is to steam at the rate of speed attainable with his machinery he estimates at eighty miles per hour. Patients having been granted him in England, Austria, and Hungary, he promises soon to disclose his intention, which, he says, has already passed through the ordeal of a trial.

A LARGE AQUARIUM, intended to surpass the exhibited ones at Hamburg, has recently been constructed in the Unter den Linden, at Berlin, by a joint stock company. The building is finished, and it is expected that all the other arrangements will be completed and the aquarium thrown open to the public before the end of the year. The Zoological Society of Berlin, however, is a very responsible committee of seven hundred animals, with a broad hint that it will make no objection if the intention is reciprocated.

Mrs. FANNY KERWELL can add to her other triumphs the rare distinction of having established a railway conductor. She bought four tickets for her two horses to ride in a carriage, and would leave next week, because she wanted to occupy four seats for the sake of comfort. The conductor was a veteran official, but he had never met such a case before.

It makes a family man shiver to be asked just now: "Have you engaged your seal? Have you spoken for your potatoes?" How many barrels of apples shall you buy? This, too, is a question setting the mind of every horse in the country, journey to the mountains, and escaping from the last sweltering day.

A new demand is likely to spring up for the wooden paper hangings. Cards from home have been signed by an innumerable number as invitations to a wedding wedding. Silver spoons plated for a similar purpose would be rather expensive hints, but those we refer to are suited to the five years of connubial bliss that has to study economy.
